Performance review

Over the past 12 months, key contributors to performance included TSMC, as growth has remained strong at a time when demand is generally weak. Revenue and profits are expected to continue to grow this year, as management commented on the "extremely robust" AI demand. TSMC's smartphones and personal computing (PC) businesses are also expected to be resilient, as content per chip is rising due to the growing adoption of AI. Tencent also added to performance as it continued to develop new functions within WeChat (such as Video Accounts and Mini Shops) to slowly improve monetisation and enhance the quality of the franchise. Tencent has proven its ability to deliver decent growth despite the weak environment – for example, its Video Accounts grew by 60% in 9M24 and contributed to a high double-digit percentage of its total advertisements' revenue.

On the negative side, Samsung Electronics declined after media reports suggested that the company would continue shutting its foundry production lines as part of its efforts to reduce operational costs. Samsung has struggled to win new orders from large technology companies and utilisation rates have been low – the company has already shut down a number of production lines to reduce electricity costs. China Resources Beer (CRB) fell as weak demand led to a decrease in beer sales volumes. Although we underestimated the growth slowdown, CR Beer's execution operationally has been decent amid a difficult environment. The premium beer segment is still growing faster than the overall portfolio (albeit at a slower pace than before).

Portfolio review

New purchases over the quarter included Techtronic, one of the world's largest producers of branded power tools and floor-care products. It occupies a leading position in North America with key brands such as Milwaukee, AEG and Ryobi. We believe the company is the strongest operator in a three-player industry, continually launching innovative products and entering new categories. After experiencing slowing growth, the company is expanding into new areas like Japan, Europe and Asia, while staying disciplined on capital allocation.

We also purchased AIA Group, one of the strongest life insurance franchises in Asia and also one of the most profitable, with its protection-biased product portfolio and affluent customer base. The company's results and growth remain solid despite the weak environment in Hong Kong and China.

We divested Singapore Telecommunications on concerns about valuations. After a period of poor performance, there was a turnaround in the company, starting with the arrival of CEO Mr Yuen Kuan Moon, in January 2021, who was more focused on capital allocation. With performance turning around across regions, valuations have re-rated and the risk-reward is less attractive than before.

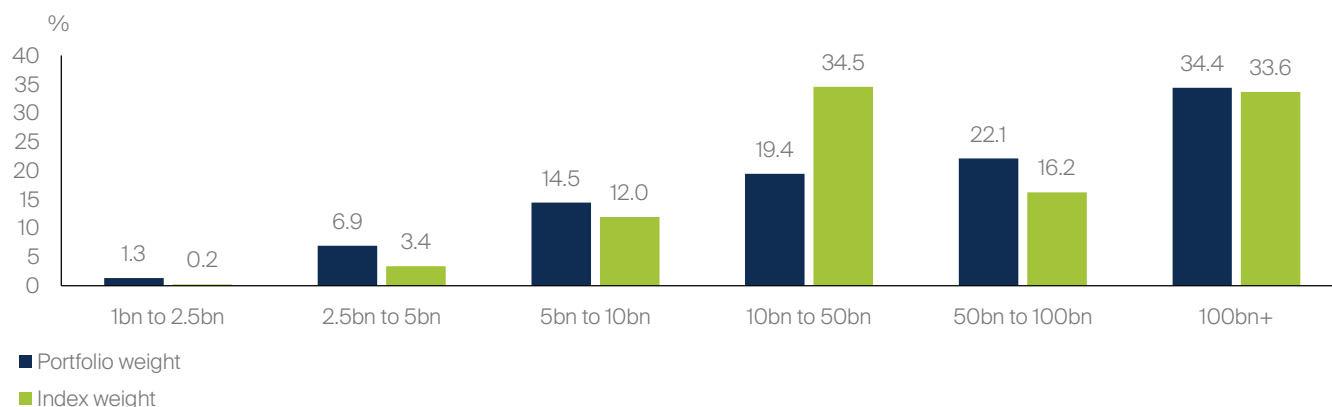

We sold Avia Avian on concerns about weak growth and whether there is sufficient long-term compounding potential for us to continue to hold.

Stock spotlight

We have been shareholders of HDFC Bank, India's largest private sector bank, for close to two decades. Thanks to its conservative and risk-aware lending, it has consistently gained market share at the expense of state-owned banks, which are plagued by asset quality and capital adequacy issues. The management team is highly experienced, with CEO Sashidhar Jagdishan at the helm. State-owned banks make up nearly 60% of the Indian banking system. Industry growth continues to be led by greater penetration of banking services and financialisation of savings among a large under-banked population.

HDFC Bank has delivered industry-leading returns over the last two decades, while consistently focusing on risk management. Earnings per share (EPS) has grown at 22% compound annual growth rate (CAGR) over this period, while its loan book has grown at 28% CAGR. This has been underpinned by investments in the branch network, as well as a focus on digital channels. Finally, we believe the recent merger with HDFC Limited will lead to a stronger financial conglomerate, benefiting from significant synergies across business lines which should be accretive to their returns over time.

Outlook

The uncertainty that was prevalent across Asian and global markets in 2024 looks set to continue into the new year. With Mr Trump's election win in the United States, the general consensus is that US policy will be negative for emerging markets – particularly as the president-elect has already raised the spectre of more protectionism and higher trade tariffs. But instead of trying to second-guess geopolitics or macro policy, we continue to focus our efforts on finding high-quality companies to invest in for the long term.

Overall, we remain constructive on our portfolio holdings and our ability to generate value in a difficult market environment. We expect there may be volatility in the near term as companies – and investors – recalibrate to the new norm. But we believe there are still pockets of growth to be found and that by investing in high-quality companies we can deliver decent returns for our clients in the long run.

Our long-term investment themes:

- Dominant consumer franchises which have an edge in brand, distribution and innovation.
- High quality financials, supported by a strong deposit franchise or a specific loan niche.
- The rise in healthcare spending, due to increasing incomes and healthy consumer choices.
- Beneficiaries of a smarter, more connected world.
- An ageing population and the growing trend of automation.
